Father Jule Returns from a Successful Mission to the Camp of the Hostiles.

They Claim to Have Been Cheated by the Census-Taker, but Finally Agree to a Conference -Action of the War Department.

FATHER JULE'S MISSION.

He Visits the Hostiles and Induces Them Confer with General Brooke. OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 6.-The following has been received from a special correspondent at Pine Ridge agency, S. D.: As pernlous a mission as a man of God has undertaken for many a day toward averting great bloodshed and loss of human life was completed yesterday, when good Father Jule, the Catholic priest whom General Brooke requested to go on t and talk with the hostile Indians, returned to the agency. It seemed sheer madness for a white man to so much as think of attempting such a mission and hope to return alive, but Father Jule, having spent seven years among the Indians at this agency, and having been looked up to and greatly confided in by the "reds," he and the officials considered it would be more possible for him to make the final effort at a peaceable adjustment of the present crisis than any one else. The reverend father was accompanied by Jack Red Cloud, the widely-respected son of the famous chief, who went more as a guide than on the supposition that he would be of any use in making the mission a success. The start was made Wednesday noon. They went down the White creek, a very unusual route, and as a result got lost after crossing White river. All of Thursday night they wandered about, being compelled to keep moving about in order to avoid freezing. Hunger was added to their discomfort, since they did not take food with them. Ten miles from the hostile camp they were halted by the enemy's pickets, who leveled their guns on them and held them until an ladien runner could be sent into the camp. Indian runner could be sent into the camp and inquire whether or not they were to be admitted. A favorable reply was received and they proceeded on, but between the muzzles of Winchesters. The camp was reached at 11 A. M. the next day, and two hours later the chiefs met Father Jule in council. There were present: Two-Strike, the head chief; Turning Bear, Short Bull, High Hawk, Crow Dog, Kicking Bear, Eagle Pipe, Big Turkey and Big Pipe. The pipe of peace was conspicuously absent. Father Jule opened the council by asking the chiefs to state the particular cause of the grievance that had led them to assume an attitude of war. Their replies were substantially as follows:

"We object to the recent census returns made by Mr. Lee. His enumeration, as he is now making it, would not give food sufficient for us to live on. Lee puts us down many less for each tepee than the tepee contains. We are to receive food according to that enumeration. We shall starve; we know we shall starve if the great father chooses to lay the trap to cheat us. We will have one big eat before the starving time comes. After that we shall fight our last fight and the white man shall see more blood—more dead by us from our guns than ever before. Then we will go to the last hunting-ground happy. If the white man did not mean to cheat us out of food, the great father never would have sent soldiers. There is no need of soldiers if the great father intended to be fair with us. We know he intends cheating us by the way the census man is now putting down figures that lie and by which we are to be fed.

"The great father has done another wrong. He put a new boundary line between Rosebud and Pine Ridge agency that makes many of us leave our homes and gives them to others. The great father broke the old treaty when he did this. We can no longer believe the great father. He says to us: 'Children, you shall never moved again, unless you want to move,' and then he goes right away and moves us. We are done with promises, and now we make a promise that we will fight, and the great father will find that we will not break our

"We will now be very plain with you, Christian Father, and tell you another thing, something of which you may have already thought. It is this: We are not coming in now, and will not lay down our rifles, because we are afraid of the consequences. We have done wrong; we know it. If we stop now we will be punished. The great father will send many of us to his hig iron-house to stay many moons. We would die. No, we will not go in and give up. We know the great father better than he knows us or cares to know us." After a long pause Crow Dog said they might come in if the soldiers were taken away.

Tather Jule says he then urged them with much fervor to be peaceable. He explained that the mission of the soldiers was not to harm the Indians, but to protect the agency; that rations had been increased at the agency, and that if they came in Gen. the agency, and that if they came in Gen. Brooke would telegraph to Washington and get permission for them to stay on this agency, as they desired. So far as depreda-tions were concerned, the Father told them they had better stop committing them and they would be more easily forgiven. Final-ly he urged the chiefs to all come back with him. To this some of the older ones made favorable answer, but the young ones, who were heavily in the majority, said no. The old men finally agreed they would come on borseback to Father Jule's house, which is about four miles northwest of the agency, and there meet General Brooke and tell him in person just what they had told Father Jules.

This brought on a renewal of bitter opnear ending in a row. Finally the young chiefs cooled off, and Two-Strike, addressing Father Jule, said: "Hold your hands up to the Great Spirit and tell us, as though you were about to start on a journey to the last hunting-ground of the red man, whether what you say to us from General Brooke be true, and that we will not be harmed if we come in simply to talk to General Brooke." Father Jule says he complied with the request. All the chiefs then extended their hands toward the heavens, and with great solemnity promised they would come. This ended the council, and Father Jule and young Red Cloud withdrew, the former telling the chiefs that if they broke their word with him he would never again believe an In-

While in the camp of the hostiles Father Jule said he saw between 1,000 and 1,200 young braves, ali fully armed, and supposes, from the size of the camp and the great number of pickets out, that the hostiles number over two thousand fighting men.
He saw large numbers of cattle being driven in from all directions, elaughtered all about the camp and the meat being cured. The camp is, he says, remarkably well fortified with embankments and finelyconstructed rifle-pits, considering that Inconstructed rifle-pits, considering that Indians did the work. The camp is wholly inaccessible, he says, by military otherwise than on foot and in single file, and as to using cannon, or such pieces as Gattling or Hotchkiss guns, such a thing is out of the question. "God alone knows," concluded the priest, "the fearfulness of the results awaiting an effort to conquer these hostile people if they continue in their present

There was an extra issue of ninety head of cattle yesterday afternoon to the "friend-lies" here at the agency. In order to do so Agent Royer had to borrow the requisite number of beeves from the supply sent here by the War Department for the military, the hostiles having taken possession of the reservation herd several days ago.

Five hostile chiefs, with a body guard of forty armed warriors carrying flag of truce, came in this morning. General Brooke promised them all the provisions they wanted if they would cease hostilities and move nearer the agency. Nothing was said about punishment. The council lasted three hours. The hostiles have now gone back to report without making any promises.

WAR DEPARTMENT ACTION.

Seneral Brooke Given Authority to Use His Discretion in Transferring Indians. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Secretary Proctor this morning received two telegrams from General Miles at Chicago. In one he quotes

General Brooke as saying that one of the main causes of discontent among the hostile Indians is that a certain band of Sioux living on Pass creek, in Rosebud spency, have been ordered to move against sheir will. These Indians desired to be transferred to the Pine Ridge agency, and have secured the consent of the Indians now there. General Brooke, in asking for authority to permit the transfer, states that in his opinion this would still further aid in the disintegration of the hostile element. General Miles telegraphed him in reply that he had ample discretion in the matter, but advised him not to make promises to the Indians. him not to make promises to the Indians. He could assure them, however, that the government had secured increased rations and more general employment, and that the soldiers would be their friends so long as they kept the peace, but their bitterest enemies should they commit crimes and ue-fy the government. General Miles adds that in his opinion the transfer can be made permanent hereafter if deemed ad-

In the other telegrams General Miles says that reports from General Brooke indicate that reports from General Brooke indicate a more favorable condition. Two Strike was expected in to-day. General Miles says that he does not regard Two Strike's threat to stab General Brooke as a signal for hostilities as important, inasmuch as it was made by an Indian in haranguing to his own people and not in the presence of a strong body of United States troops. He says that in case the disintegration continues the threatened outbreak will be prevented for this winter at least. The situavented for this winter at least. The situation is still a grave one in his opinion, and will require extreme watchfulness on the part of the authorities to satisfy the lndians and to avert hostilities until the

In response to a Senate resolution asking for information respecting the disarmament of Indians in the Northwest, the Secretary of War to-day transmitted to Congress a letter from Major-general Schofield and a mass of official correspondence. Secretary Proctor says: "It will be seen that the efforts of the military authorities had been exerted to divide and bring within the power of the troops, by peaceable means, as many of the disaffected as possible, and, at the same time, to make the best possible preparation to suppress the outbreak promptly should it occur. It was plainly the better policy to take steps that would make it possible to disarm the Indians at the proper time than to attempt this prematurely, when it could be only partially successful, and would doubtless precipitate a serious outbreak." In response to a Senate resolution asking precipitate a serious ontbreak."

General Schofield, in his letter, says:
"There can be no practical disarmament of the Indians except by making them actual prisoners of war and holding them under such restraint that it will be impossible for them to procure arms or ammunition. This would seem to require such change in the general policy followed in the treatment of the warlike tribes of Indians as would continue military control over those who may have been subdued until such control becomes manifestly no longer.
necessary, and this, it is suggested, may possibly be done by joint action between the War and Interior departments in such manner as not to interfere with the measures of the Interior Department deemed best for the civilization and material welfare of the Indians."

Claim to Have Held Harmless Dances. CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Dec. 6.-The troop of soldiers sent to Lower Brule agency to take charge of those Indians who were lodged in the agency guard-house, having been arrested by the Indian police for participating in the Indian ghost dances, today brought their prisoners across the river and lodged them in the city jail, where they will remain for the night. They leave in the morning for Fort Snelling. The Indians at Lower Brule feel aggrieved that these comparatively harmless Indians are arrested, while at the same time Sitting Bull and a host of other Indians who are really dangerous and tireless peace-dis-turbers receive increased rations. These Indians insist that it is unjust discrimina-tion; that they have been friendly and have given evidence of their friendship for the government. They claim that their dances were not carried to the extreme, as at other agencies, but according to their old-time established custom.

On the Verge of Starvation. Sisseron Agency, S. D., Dec. 6.-The 1,200 Indians on the Sisseton and Wahpeton reservation are on the verge of starvation at the opening of winter because of the government's failure to furnish them subsistence. The Interior Department has authorized the expenditure of $2,000 for the relief of the red men, but upon this small sum of money over 1,200 men, women and children must live for a period of six months of rigorous winter. This is less than 1 cent a day for each person. Chief Renville and all the other able-bodied Indians on the reservation have addressed a petition to the government, as follows: "We appeal to the authorities at Washington and our friends every where in the East to aid us as far as it be in their power. Unless we are helped in some way great suffering and actual starvation will be inev-

Failed to Make Him Bullet-Proof. CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Dec. 6.-In the hostile camp of Red Dog, on Wounded Knee creek, lives Mrs. Eagle Horn. This squaw pretended to be able to perform miracles, and said she could make the Indians bullet-proof and prevent them being harmed in any other manner. Porcupine, a leading Indian, offered himself as a subject on which to prove her mysterious power. It was arranged that he should mount his pony and fight against the entire band. Mrs. Eagle Horn "blessed" Porcu-pine, but while he was mounting his pony is revolver was accidentally discharged, inflicting a severe wound in his leg. A panic ensued, and Mrs. Eagle Horn was denounced as an imposter. Such exposes as these will do much to put a stop to the Messiah craze. General Miles Will Start Monday. CHICAGO, Dec. 6.-Matters at army headquarters were very quiet to-day. General Miles said that the only news he had for publicity was that the troops now en route from the various military posts to Pine Ridge agency were making rapid progress toward their destinations. General Miles is making preparations to start for the Northwest on Monday.

KILLED BY A DESPERADO.

Kuntz, the Fostoria Murderer, Shoots Down a Police Officer at Cherubusco.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 6 .- Mervin Kuntz, the Indiana desperado who, a week ago, committed a horrible murder at Fostoria, O., and is charged with many other crimes, killed police officer John Cornelley to-night at Cherubusco, a small village eight miles northeast of this city.

Kuntz is one of the most desperate criminals in this State, and a large reward is offered for his arrest. At noon to-day he stepped off a train in this city, and was immediately recognized by the police, who have been on the lookout for him. He escaped arrest, however, and took flight through the country. He was followed up by police lieutenant Wilkenson and officer Cornelley. who caught their man at Cherubusco. When they attempted to place him under arrest Kuntz drew a revolver fired several shots, killing Cornelley instantly. Wilkenson followed the desperado up, but he got away in the A large posse is now in pursuit, and a lynching is probable before morning. The country is thickly settled, and Kuntz cannot possibly escape. Found Dead Under a Horse. JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 6 .- At an early hour this morning two men were found in the country lying dead in a ditch near a culvert, with a horse on top of them. The dead men were Crittenden Jasper and Ben Richardson. They had been in town the day before, and drank heavily before starting home. They had driven off the end of the culvert and had been pitched into the ditch, the horse falling on top of them.

Heir to Five Millions. CHEROKEE, Ia., Dec. 6.—Swan Gustafson. a Swede, twenty years old, who was working as a laborer here on a railroad, has just fallen heir to $5,000,000 by the death of a relative in Pennsylvania. He has left for Philadelphia to claim his fortune.

MR. DENNIS'S CURE.

The Popular Snake Story Retires in Favor of Wild, Weird Tales of Spirits.

BEVERLY, Mass., Dec. 6 .- One of the most remarkable recoveries ever reported came to Chas. S. Dennis, of Beverly, last Sunday evening, and his friends, who saw him then and have seen him since, are firm believers in miracles. About four months ago Mr. Dennis had a shock, and, as a result, his whole left side was paralyzed. He was unable to do any work, and the services of a nurse were required constantly. About a month ago he began to improve, and was able to get around by the aid of crutches and a cane. His left side was a dead weight, and he could not lift his left foot an inch from the ground. For years Mr. Dennis's friends have claimed that possessed a supernatural gift, but he seldom exercised it, and knowing his condition and fearing another shock, they advised him to exercise that power on himself which it was claimed he possessed. After much persuasion he consented, and last Sunday evening he invited to his house, 26 Prospect street, several friends, including Israel Lefevre, proprietor of the Queen Hotel; Benj. Larcon, jr., a leading doctor, and Dr. Swayzey, and old-school physician, who has been doctoring Mr. Dennis during his recent illness, besides one or two lady friends. The company sat in a darkened friends. The company sat in a darkened room, and joined hands, placing them on the table around which they sat. In a few minutes Mr. Dennis felt what seemed to be hands rubbing his right leg and thigh. Immediately they passed to the left leg and side, and began to rub them. So distinct was the noise that all in the room heard it, and as it proceeded Dr. Swayzey, who had hold of Mr. Dennis's hand, marked a growing warmth and moisture where it was cold and clammy before. As the blood began to circulate the same operation of rubbing was extended to his throat. A few minutes later the Doctor was surprised to hear Mr. Dennis speak in his natural tone of voice, when ever since the shock his articulation has been understood with difficulty, as the organs of the throat were paralyzed. In about haif an hour from the time they getting up and declaring himself well, and, to the astonishment of all, he ran up and down stairs three or four times while one of the company held the light. From that time to this he has felt no effects of his recent illness except a little weakness in the left side. He cannot explain how the change came about.

HIS BULLET FLEW WILD.

Jealous Husband Tries to Shoot His Wife's Theatrical Manager at Noblesville.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Dec. 6 .- A highly exciting and rather dramatic scene occurred at the Hotel Wainwright, in this city, last night. A number of gentlemen were sitting in the hotel office quietly talking, when Charles Darter, of Indianapolis, suddenly and without warning, threw open the door of the hotel and attempted to shoot T. M. Brown, the theatrical manager. Brown, in trying to escape the would-be assassin, passed out through a side door. This brought the Hon. E. C. Field, who was sitting in the hotel at the time, be-tween Brown and Darter, and in direct tween Brown and Darter, and in direct range with Darter's revolver, which he kept pointed at Brown. Darter fired, the bullet passing immediately over Judge Field's head. It missed Brown and struck the door-hinge and glanced off through a transom without injuring any one. Darter's wife is a member of the troupe of which Brown is manager, and the cause of the shooting is jealousy on the part of Darter. Darter was arrested, and, in default of bail, was sent to jail for appearance before the Mayor next Tuesday. Before shooting at Brown he had called at his wife's room and ordered her to return to Indianapolis with him. She refused, whereupon he attempted to shoot her, but was prevented by others in the room. Darter is a painter by trade.

MAMIE STARR CONVICTED.

The Chicago Kitchen Borgia Given Life Imprisonment for Her Double Crime.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.-Life imprisonment was the verdict rendered this evening against Mamie Starr, the prisoner. On hearing the announcement she screamed and fainted away in court, remaining unconscious twenty minutes. The customary motion for a new trial was entered, and will probably be overruled Monday. The prisoner is about twenty-five years old. She has alternately been a variety actress and a do-mestic. It was while she was in the employ of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Newland as kitchen girl that the poisoning was done. According to the testimony the girl became despondent and decided to take her own life, but wished to avoid disgracing her babe by such an act. To make the suicide appear an accident the girl put rat poison in the food to be partaken of by the whole house-hold, herself included. At the last moment she became too frightened to carry out her purpose fully, and fled from the house without eating any of the deadly preparation. The extraordinary ingenuity displayed by the girl toward mystifying the circumstances to shield her guilt has made the case increasingly notable from the moment of the death of her two victims, Mr. and Mrs. Newland.

World's Fair Matters.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—President Lyman J. Bage, of the Columbian Exposition, says that no attempt will be made to float the newly authorized issue of $5,000,000 for at least six or nine months. Vice-president Bryan is preparing a certified copy of the world's fair bond ordinance and collecting affidavits and papers tending to show the legality of Chicago's assurance that she is ready for the world's fair. On Monday Director Peck and Secretary Butterworth will present these documents, together with the rules and regulations governing foreign exhibits, to President Harrison for his consideration in framing the proclamation to the nations of the world.
